Standard for the use of paramedic titles

Te Kaunihera Manapou Paramedic Council (Te Kaunihera) is responsible for setting standards for paramedics, including describing the expectations of competence and professionalism. Te Kaunihera's primary concern is public safety. This document sets out the legal and ethical standard for the use of paramedic titles.¹

Principles

Paramedics must work within the limits of their own professional expertise and competence and within the paramedic scope of practice and standards described by Te Kaunihera. Paramedics are individually accountable for ensuring all health services they provide are consistent with their education and skill level.

Use of paramedic titles

Only those individuals who are registered with Te Kaunihera can use the title paramedic.² The public can expect that registered paramedics have the relevant qualifications, skills and competence to safely provide paramedic services.

Te Kaunihera has developed specialist paramedic endorsements that allow suitably qualified and competent paramedics who are granted the endorsement by Te Kaunihera to practise in an expanded role and to use the specialist title of extended care paramedic, critical care paramedic, and/or intensive care paramedic. Only paramedics who hold the relevant specialist endorsement can use these specialist titles.

For clarity, the only titles approved by Te Kaunihera for paramedic practice in Aotearoa New Zealand are:³

- paramedic
- extended care paramedic (ECP)
- critical care paramedic (CCP)
- intensive care paramedic (ICP).

The use of approved paramedic titles ensures that health consumers, colleagues or others providing health or paramedic services can be assured that the paramedic is qualified, competent and fit to practise within a clearly defined area of paramedicine. Use of unapproved paramedic titles may confuse health consumers, colleagues or others providing health or paramedic services and this may pose a risk to the health and safety of the public.

¹ This standard has been developed under s 118(i) of the Health Practitioners Competence Assurance Act 2003.

² Health Practitioners Competence Assurance Act 2003, s 7(1).

³ Notice of Amended Paramedic Scopes of Practice and Prescribed Qualifications to be Gazetted

Position descriptions

Te Kaunihera recognises that paramedics may be employed in a role which incorporates a paramedic title to describe their position within the organisation, for example Chief Paramedic Officer, Chief Paramedic Advisor, Clinical Paramedic Advisor, Paramedic Supervisor.⁴ While this statement does not prevent the use of appropriate position descriptions within provider organisations, it is important to emphasise that:

- position descriptions which imply specialist registration are inappropriate as they may confuse health consumers, colleagues or others providing health or paramedic services.
- position descriptions should not use an approved paramedic title in a way which suggests another form of specialist endorsement. By way of example only, this may include titles such as Paramedic Specialist or Consultant Paramedic.
- The use of unapproved paramedic titles or inappropriate position descriptions may also be viewed as misleading to the public or health professionals about a paramedic's level of experience or area of practice or over-represent their qualifications, skills or competence. This is unacceptable.

Application of this standard

Paramedics have a professional responsibility to comply with Te Kaunihera standards and expectations. Paramedics must:

- not use paramedic titles that are not approved by Te Kaunihera
- ensure that any position description which incorporates a paramedic title does not imply specialist endorsement (or another form of specialist registration)
- demonstrate personal and professional integrity in how their qualifications, skills and competence is represented to health consumers, colleagues or others providing health or paramedic services
- practise within their scope of practice and the limits of their own professional expertise and competence

Te Kaunihera considers that it is appropriate for employers of paramedics to have regard to this statement (and any other Te Kaunihera-related guidance) when considering the use of paramedic titles and position descriptions.

This standard has been issued by Te Kaunihera Manapou | Paramedic Council (Te Kaunihera) pursuant to section 118(1)(i) of the Health Practitioners Competence Assurance Act 2003. This standard may be used by Te Kaunihera, the Health and Disability Commissioner and the Health Practitioners Disciplinary Tribunal when assessing a paramedic's professional conduct.

Approved by Te Kaunihera Manapou Paramedic Council Hepetema | September 2024

⁴ Reference to 'employed' and 'employers' includes reference to all roles in which a paramedic may practice, whether paid or unpaid. For the avoidance of any doubt, all standards set by Te Kaunihera apply to paramedics undertaking voluntary work.
